TWO EXTREMES IN AMERICAN POLITICS.

The extremes are represented by Roosevelt and Bryan, according to the Nebraska State Journal, which comments on the war attitude of the two men.

"America's penchant for extremes gives us satisfaction in the possession of Colonel Roosevelt and Bryan in these days of piping war," says the Journal. "From peace at any rate to war at any cost is some jump. That is the distance from Mr. Bryan to Mr. Roosevelt. From Maine to California, from Alpha to Omega, from Scylla to Charybdis, such is the journey from Bryan to Roosevelt or back again. The Arabic sinks. Mr. Bryan opines that no small matter like the killing of a few American citizens contrary to law, when the said citizens should as well have been hiding in the bushes, justifies a serious complication with Germany. The Arabic sinks. Mr. Roosevelt is astonished and disgusted that we do not declare war at once if not sooner. Indeed, Mr. Roosevelt appears miffed because we did not declare war the day Lieke was fired upon. As nearly as we can tell from his speeches, there have been at least 385 days since the war began on which Mr. Roosevelt would have been proud and glad to declare war. For the wide flung efforts of these two gentlemen we have as much reason to be grateful as for any others of the world's flinisteries. They are buoys, bell buoys revealing the rocks which we are trying to keep off of. We don't want to be a door mat, we Americans, so we shall keep a safe distance from Mr. Bryan. We don't want to swallow a porcupine, so we shall not go close to the bristly Mr. Roosevelt."

IN THE SWAMPS OF RUSSIA.

The autumn rains are beginning to aid the Russians in their retreat through the swamps east of Brest-Litovsk.

One of the most important places in that region of malaria is Pinsk, the present objective of the central German army. Situated on the Pina river, within the swamp and marsh region, it is described in a bulletin from the National Geographic Society, as the center of great waterway connections:

"A line drawn east from Brest-Litovsk through Pinsk, marks the lowest depression of the vast, unhealthful marsh tract. In the direction of this line, the Pripiet flows east, and numerous tributaries flow to the Pripiet from the north and from the south. Pinsk is joined by a canal to the west with the Bug, and, thus, with the Vistula and German Danzig. The Orinsky Canal, to the north, connects it with the Niemen, while the Pripiet brings it into connection with the rich lands of Little Russia. The Russian government has been conducting works for the draining of the swamps around Pinsk since 1872, and some 8,000,000 acres have been reclaimed. To the east of Pinsk, however, lies a great stretch of land about hopelessly water-logged.

"While the introduction of railways have diverted some of the water-borne traffic of Pinsk, it still enjoys a considerable commerce, and, before the war, there was every promise that its river and canal carried trade would increase enormously. Grains, meats and other farm products, leather, timber and timber products form the bulk of its commerce. The town has a number of factories which turn out matches, leather goods, soap, beer and woodwork. It has a population of about 30,000, more than two-thirds of which is Jewish. The hand of Mars has borne heavily upon the town, and it has been razed to the level of its own swamps several times in the fierce passage of invaders."

SINKING OF THE HESPERIAN.

One more liner has been sent to the bottom by a German submarine, notwithstanding the assurance given the American government that passenger ships would not be torpedoed, without warning and without giving the passengers and crew ample time to escape.

The torpedoing of the Hesperian seems to throw doubt on the sincerity of the Germans, although the statement is made that the Hesperian carried a gun. The attack on the ship was made when darkness was coming on and it is doubtful that a submarine commander could have accurately determined that the boat was armed.

Further details must be awaited before passing judgment. There is a possibility the submarine crew was not informed of the new orders of the German naval authorities, but here again a question of good faith arises as the German government, in explaining the Arabic disaster, stated submarine commanders prior to that time had been instructed not to sink passenger ships without warning.

GET AWAY FROM THE LITTLE CLIQUES.

The Examiner comes out in opposition to the naming of a Republican ticket in the coming municipal campaign. This announcement, taken in connection with the Examiner's endorsement of the action of the present city commissioners in granting 50-year franchises in gas and light, is most significant.

The Standard is not particularly concerned over the welfare of the Republican party and would not worry if Democrats or Socialists won in the municipal election, but, having in mind the developments of the past month during which the danger of giving too much power to three men has been made evident, we feel that back of the candidates for city office, should stand as sponsor some organization which the people could reach and punish.

We recall how two of the present commissioners were named by less than twenty men gathered in private in the old Utah Loan & Trust building. If less than a score have named our nominees, what is the objection to an entire party participating in selecting candidates and being held accountable for the shortcomings of the aspirants?

We should do something to get away from these little cliques, if we are to continue to live under a commission form of government which is without the recall. Our present system of allowing the nominees to be designated by some one who keeps under cover is all wrong for it will continue to produce more than one repetition of the surprise attending the 50-year gas and light franchises.

The Standard is in favor of all the publicity possible in connection with our city campaigns, in order to prevent the secret scheming which goes with the naming of candidates by no known responsible authority. Parties, we must admit, are not entirely free from the machinations of the powerful corporations seeking special privileges, but there is no great danger of the big concerns succeeding in controlling regular party organizations without showing their hand and disclosing their identity. To that extent the people are forewarned when party responsibility is demanded.

GRATEFUL PAPA.

Miss Curley kept a private school, and one morning was interviewing a new pupil.

"What does your father do to earn his living?" the teacher asked the little girl.

"Please, ma'am" was the prompt reply, "he doesn't live with us. My mamma supports me."

"Well, then," asked the teacher, "how does your mother earn her living?"

"Why," replied the little girl, in an artless manner, "she gets paid for staying away from father."

BISHOP GLASS GIVEN HEARTY WELCOME TO OGDEN

Catholics and non-Catholics of Ogden united last night in honoring the Right Rev. Joseph S. Glass, C. M. D., bishop of Salt Lake diocese, when they filled St. Joseph's church to its capacity to listen to his first sermon in Ogden. At the conclusion of the service, was given an informal reception in the hall of the church in honor of the visiting prelate and nearly two hours were passed by the local people in clasping hands and extending their good will.

Bishop Glass came to the city from Salt Lake early yesterday afternoon, accompanied by the Right Rev. Monsignor J. M. McCarthy, V. F., of Fresno; the Right Rev. Dr. Robert J. Cotter of South Pasadena; the Rev. Father Edward H. Brady of Los Angeles; the Rev. Father Thomas A. Lillie, C. M., of New Orleans, and the Very Rev. George S. Rapier, S. M., president of All Hallows college, Salt Lake. The party was met at the Union depot by Rev. Father P. M. Cushman and a delegation of members of St. Joseph church and taken for an automobile ride through Ogden canyon. On the return trip, the party stopped at the Hermitage hotel and was entertained at a dinner by Father Cushman.

Following the dinner, they returned to the city and Bishop Glass conducted the vespers service in St. Joseph's church. At the opening of the service, Rev. Father John Ryan, assistant pastor of the local church, led in the recitation of the rosary. Following this, Bishop Glass preached the evening sermon, his themes being the life of Christ and the dissemination of the gospel by the apostles. Continuing, he outlined the fundamental teachings of the Roman Catholic church, which, he said, was a divine constitution of the church, founded by the Savior and continued by St. Peter. "It teaches," he continued, "that it is not only necessary to salvation that one should believe in the truths of Christianity as expounded by the Savior, but also that to be saved it is necessary for each to take up the cross and follow Him."

As a parting thought, I would like to impress upon you the necessity of rearing your children in the Christian life. If the little ones do not know Christ, how are they to love Him? "I am very happy to meet the Catholic people of Ogden, to know of their co-operation in the grand work of their beloved pastor. Your beautiful church and your magnificent academy have left with me a deep impression. My sincere hope is that in the future, in the very near future, you will have a college for boys fully as splendid as your beautiful academy. This is the hope and this is the blessing that I pray will be yours."

Following the sermon, Bishop Glass officiated at the benediction. Special music for the service was furnished by St. Joseph's choir and each number was effectively sung. The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion, all of the altars being covered with autumn flowers and ferns.

The reception which followed the service was one of the most noteworthy ever held in the city and, in addition to the visiting churchmen, Charles A. McGuire and Mrs. A. R. Heywood of Ogden were in the receiving line.

After all had met the new bishop Joseph Portley and Marguerite McNulty of St. Joseph's choir, sang several solos. Then at the urgent request of Bishop Glass the Rev. Father Edward H. Brady of Los Angeles sang "The Perfect Day," a favorite of Bishop Glass.

Father Cushman then spoke a few words of welcome in behalf of the people of Ogden. He told Bishop Glass that if ever it should happen that he were not treated right in Salt Lake all he had to do would be to catch the first train for Ogden. Responding, Bishop Glass said:

"Since first I met Father Cushman he has been telling me of the superior advantages of Ogden, of your beautiful church and academy and of your wonderful canyon. He never once mentioned our beautiful canyons near Salt Lake. Father Cushman has showed us all of the beauties of the city, but he saved the best until last—yourself."

"I wish to express to him and to you our most sincere thanks for this most cordial reception. I have enjoyed meeting you more than I can tell. I have been particularly pleased to meet your splendid boys and girls. "However, I want to say that if you want to wait until I am tired of Salt Lake before you see me again you will have to wait a long time. If you can outdo the courtesy, the kindness and the hospitality of the people of Salt Lake you will have to wait."

The bishop stopped and smiled, then added:

"—you will have to go some."

Continuing, he said:

"I wish to take this opportunity to thank you from the bottom of my heart for the hearty and loyal support you have given your pastor, the good Father Cushman, in the past and I want to urge you to continue that support in the future for I know you wouldn't want to lose him. Would you?"
